President

The Technical College of the Lowcountry recognizes that adverse weather conditions can impact College operations. While every attempt is made to maintain normal operations and services for the benefit of students, faculty, and staff, it may occasionally be necessary to curtail specific operations within the College due to inclement weather conditions.

TCL follows the same weather hazard decisions made by county government officials where each campus is located. (SC State Government Office Closings)

In the event of other unexpected events impacting normal College operation, the College President will decide which operations may be curtailed and when normal operations will resume. Official announcements will be carried on social media outlets, local radio, television stations, and posted to the TCL website.
